

TRS1000 Teaching Resource System Web Site Semester 1, 2007

Welcome to the official TRS1000 Teaching Resource System web site.¹

This is an example web site in the form of a fictitious course which aims to teach how to use the Teaching Resource System. Check the announcements for recent additions.

Announcements

8/3/2007 The TRS1000 Teaching Resource System web site opens.
Announcement history

All material on this web site is Copyright ©2007 Peter Stepien unless otherwise stated.

Contents

1	About this Site	2
2	Lecture Notes	2
3	Lecture Slides	2
4	Announcement History	2

¹This document is the PDF version of the web site located at <http://www.cel.usyd.edu.au/~pstepien/TRS1000>.

1 About this Site

As not to waste paper resources when printing from this site, documents have been provided in one or more of the following formats (shown with the corresponding tag):

- PDF file with one page at a time (pdf).
- PDF file with two pages at a time (pdf-2up).
- PDF file with four pages at a time (pdf-4up).
- HTML for direct on-line viewing (html).

To make it easier to get a hard copy of the information contained in the top level of this web site, it is also available as a PDF file:

- Unit of Study Web Site (pdf, pdf-2up)

2 Lecture Notes

The lecture notes complement that which is presented in lectures.

An on-line version of these lecture notes is also available here:

- Lecture Notes (pdf, pdf-2up)

3 Lecture Slides

The lecture slides represent the slides which are used to present a course. The slides have been provided in three formats: PDF (one slide per page), PDF (four slides per page) and HTML.

The topic slides in alphabetical order by topic (only one for now):

Topic	Slides
Overview	(pdf, pdf-4up)

4 Announcement History

Below is a history of all the announcements made on this web site for reference.

Date	Announcement
8/3/2007	The TRS1000 Teaching Resource System web site opens.